Empowering libraries. Empowering communities.

AT&T

The program:

Learning to code is about much more than simply creating games. Code can be used to educate our peers and change the world.

This program focuses on creating amazing experiences with code to educate our community on the effects of cyberbullying. Students will address the impacts of cyberbullying and design a choose your own adventure game that presents a variety of different cyberbullying scenarios. Each group will brainstorm and storyboard their scenarios, create custom graphics, and code their games using Scratch!
