"A page-turner for booklovers everywhere! . . . A story of family ties, their lost dreams, and the redemption that comes from discovering truth."

—Adriana Trigiani, bestselling author of The Shoemaker's Wife

Fiona Davis' latest novel is set in one of the most iconic structures in the city—the New York Public Library. A New York Times bestselling novel and chosen as the Good Morning America Book Pick for August, "The Lions of Fifth Avenue" does not disappoint! Join us for a virtual author talk with one of our favorite guests, Fiona Davis.

Fiona Davis was born in Canada and raised in New Jersey, Utah, and Texas. She is a graduate of the College of William & Mary and the Columbia University School of Journalism. The first ten years of her career were spent as an actress in New York City. After ten years, she changed careers, working as an editor and writer. This is her fifth novel.
